Description

Remarkably lovely mountains in the area around Reichenberger Hütte. Geologically interesting structure, consisting of a wide variety of stones – magnesian limestone, mica-slate, steatite, quartz, paragneiss, serpentinite and marble. The tour begins in St. Jakob and proceeds via the Hintere Trojertal to the Reichenberger Hütte. From the Hütte pass the left of the Bodessee via a good trail, flat initially, then climbing slightly to the Rote Lenke. The route then turns to the left and continues to climb, moderately steeply on a path in hairpin bends up to the ridge top. The final few meters via the rugged back of the ridge, to the summit on the right. The descent can then be made via the Durfeldalm.
